

Light-hearted music show raises some serious cash

A CHARITY concert for Gables Farm proved to be a treat for both people and animals alike.

The event raised money for the cats and dogs home in Plympton as well as delighting the audience at Plymouth College. Organised by The Herald's classical music writer Philip Buttall, the concert included scholars and staff from the independent school in a light-hearted programme.

The show featured the school's samba band, electric guitar solos by a sixth-former, a teacher on the clarinet and some novelty duets. Representatives of Gables Farm returned to the college to pick up a cheque from the evening for £333.
